Learning how to ask for a bus ticket, where to find a local store, or how to access health and employment services are basic yet essential skills for refugees to settle well.

As part of the English Conversation Program, we help people to learn basic English phrases and use them in conversation with others in the group.

Benefits of the program include:

- Ability to navigate day-to-day systems and services
- English skills for accessing health and employment services
- Reduced social isolation
- Enhanced social and life skills to integrate and settle into the Australian community
- English language skills to support social interaction within the local community, including with schools and other organisations/service providers.

Please note that we do not provide childcare as part of the English Conversation Program.
